11:33:26 From dhayden : Banks are complaining there is insufficient guidance from the federal government on what degree of detail the lenders need before they can make PPP loans quickly. Businesses need to have been in existence on Feb 15. Expect a lot of delays and problems before anything is approved. The number of unemployment claims was over 6.6 million which also overwhelmed the system. Has the SBA heard of these issues and are they expecting to provide additional details on how much information the banks will need so companies can collect that information now?
